tors, and continues with listings of frequency measuring services, videotext operations, teletext operations, videotext and teletext software and hardware suppliers, automated-channel suppliers, broadcast automation systems, and a directory of companies providing mobile production services. These listings include addresses, telephone numbers, and names of prinicipal executives. Next are lists of common carriers including land line, microwave & multipoint distribution services. On pahe H-54 a chart shows the growth of broadcasting, and on page H-56 a chart shows television and radio set sales from 1958-1984. The last part of Section H begins on page H-57 with the 1986 Buyer's Guide, the yellow pages, a commercial directory to both equipment and broadcast services.

Section I- is divided into three parts-Professional Services, Associations, and Broadcast Education. Part one provides listings of brokers and consultants, station financing firms, research services, technical consultants, law firms and attorneys in communication law, public relations services, talent agents, and employment services. Part two, Associations, begins on page I-42 with the National Association of Broadcasters and includes trade organizations, professional associations and societies, and unions. Broadcast Education, part three, opens on page I-55 with broadcasting schools. The section continues with reviews of recently published books related to the Fifth Estate. Section I concludes with a list of colleges and universities offering degrees and courses in radio and television.

The Solution To Your Old Cart Machine Is Not A New Cart Machine!

From AFA comes the remarkable new Pegasus 5100 commercial compilation system. It does everything cart machines do—and more. And it does it better, more efficiently, virtually eliminates the need for "make-goods"—and, ultimately, will save you money!

This new solid state computer support system facilitates the automatic off-line compiling of commercial breaks using existing general purpose VTR/VCR equipment!

The system allows for the loading of approximately 175 spots on a single ninety-minute tape. And deletions, additions and last-minute changes are virtually automatic.

But be careful, once you see the Pegasus 5100 in action, you'll never want to use a cart machine again!

Call Marc Bressack at (201) 767-1000 to arrange a demonstration of this exciting new system.

The first is the allocation of space in the radio frequency spectrum to the broadcast services and to many nonbroadcast services which also must be accommodated. In view of the tremendously increased use of radio technology in recent decades, the competing demands for frequencies are among the commission's most pressing problems. Fortunately, as technology has advanced, frequencies higher and higher in the spectrum have become usable. Apart from the frequencies used for broadcasting, frequencies in other portions of the spectrum are allocated for "broadcast auxiliary" use by remote pickup and other transmitters auxiliary to main broadcast stations (see Auxiliary Broadcast Services).

The second phase of regulation is the assignment of stations in each service within the allocated frequency bands, with specific location, frequency and power. The chief consideration, although by no means the only one, is to avoid interference with other stations on the same channel (frequency) or channels adjacent in the spectrum. If an application is granted, the applicant for a new station or for changed facilities receives a construction permit. Later, when the station is built and it is capable of operating as proposed, a license to operate is issued.

The third phase is regulation of existing stations: inspection to see that stations are operating in accordance with FCC rules and technical provisions of their authorizations, modifying the authorizations when necessary, assigning station call letters, licensing transmitter operators, processing requests to assign the station license to another party or transfer control of the licensee corporation, and processing applications for renewal of license. At renewal time, the commission reviews the station's record to see if it is operating in the public interest.

The Nature of American Broadcasting

Although educational and other noncommercial stations share the airwaves, the American broadcasting system for the most part is a commercial system. In this respect it is supported by revenues from those who advertise goods or services to the audience. Advertising messages are presented as commercial "spot announcements" before, during, and after programs, or as a part of "sponsored" programs.

Broadcast stations are licensed to serve the public interest, convenience and necessity. By law, each license must contain a statement that the licensee does not have any right to operate the station or use the frequency beyond the term of license. The maximum term of license for a radio station is seven years; the maximum term of license for a television station is five years.

Under requirements of the Communications Act, applicants must be legally, technically and financially qualified, and they must show that their proposed operation would be in the public interest. They must be citizens of the United States. Corporations with alien officers or directors or with more than one-fifth of the capital stock controlled by foreign interests may not be licensed.

Penalties for broadcast station violations, depending upon the degree of seriousness, range from reprimands, fines up to $10,000, and short-term probationary licenses to denial of license renewal, or even license revocation. Cease-and-desist orders may also be issued.

In 1965, the commission provided for public inspection of certain records of broadcast stations in the communities they serve. These are mainly duplicate copies of records in the public files of the commission in Washington, and include licenses, records of ownership, applications to the FCC and related material, network affiliation contracts and employment reports.

The commission is forbidden by law from censoring programs. The Communications Act, Section 326, states: "Nothing in this Act shall be understood or construed to give the commission the power of censorship over the radio communications of signals transmitted by any radio station, and no regulation or condition shall be promulgated or fixed by the commission which shall interfere with the right of free speech by means of radio communication."

Fairness—The commison had held that when a station presents one viewpoint on a controversial public issue, the public interest requires that reasonable opportunity be afforded for the presentation of opposing viewpoints. This is the "Fairness Doctrine." It stems from a policy on editorializing announced in 1949, supported by a 1959 amendment to the Communications Act, which obligates broadcasters "to afford reasonable opportunity for the discussion of conflicting views of public importance." In 1967, the commission adopt-

A short course in broadcasting, 1986

There were 9,871 radio stations operating in the United States at the end of 1985. Of these, 4,805 were commercial AM's, 3,846 were commercial FM's and 1,220 were noncommercial FM's. There were 1,220 operating television stations: 541 commercial VHF's, 381 commercial UHF's, 113 noncommercial VHF's and 185 noncommercial UHF's. Most commercial TV's are network affiliated; approximately 290 operate as independents.

No single entity may own more than 12 stations in each service (AM, FM or TV). In TV, the entity is permitted to own 12 TV stations as long as they don't reach more than 25% of the nation's television homes. UHF's are assessed for only half of a market's television homes. Group broadcasters who buy interests in stations more than half owned by minorities are able to own up to 14 stations in a service, and are able to reach 30% of the nation's television households through their TV's, as long as two of the stations in each service are controlled by minorities. Newspaper owners may no longer purchase broadcast properties in the same market, nor may radio station owners acquire TV stations there, nor TV owners radio outlets. TV stations may no longer acquire cable TV franchises in the same city, and networks may not own cable systems at all.

In 1984, according to estimates by the Television Bureau of Advertising and the Radio Advertising Bureau, commercial broadcasting had total advertising revenues of approximately $24.8 billion. Television advertising accounted for $19.0 billion (76.6%) of revenues; radio advertising, for approximately $5.8 billion (23.4%). Public broadcasting had a 1984 income of $974.2 million—17.1% from the federal government.

In 1984 television billings for stations and networks amounted to $8,500,000,000 (national network0, $5,500,000,000 (national non-network), and $5,000,000,000 (local), according to estimates by the Television Bureau of Advertising. The Radio Advertising Bureau estimated radio billings for stations and networks were $288,000,000 (national network), $1,184,400,000 (national non-network), and $4,412,000,000 (local).

There are more than 86 million U.S. homes (98% of all homes) with television sets, about 57% of which have more than one set. About 80 million homes have color. It is estimated that about 96% of TV homes can receive UHF signals, and that about 44.8% are linked with cable systems, according to Arbitron Television. (Further data on cable TV appears in "A short course in cable, 1986" on page D-3.) There are an estimated 489 million radio sets in the U.S., 269 million (55%) of them in homes and 220 million (45%) out of homes.

The average American home watches TV for seven hours and seven minutes a day, according to A.C. Nielsen statistics for the calendar year 1985. And the latest study by The Roper Organization (commissioned by the Television Information Office) shows that 64% of the U.S. public turns to TV as the source of most of its news, and that 53% ranks it as the most believable news source.

The average 30-second prime-time network television announcement now costs $120,000 (spots on a top-rated series cost $200,000; low-rated spots average about $80,000). An estimated 120 million people watched the 1986 Super Bowl telecast. Thirty-second announcements during that event cost $550,000. Thirty-second announcements on individual TV stations range from $15,000 in top-rated specials in major markets to as low as $10 in the second-hundred markets. Radio spots costs from $1,000 or more in major markets to less than a dollar in small towns.

Group Ownership

Listed here are individuals and companies with multiple station holdings. Included are all those controlling three or more radio stations and/or two or more television stations. FCC rules limit multiple ownership to 12 AM stations, 12 FM stations and 12 television stations, as long as the 12 TV stations don't reach more than 25% of the nation's television homes. UHF's are assessed for only half of a market's television homes. Group broadcasters may own up to 14 stations in a service if two of the stations in each service are controlled by minorities. Ownership of cable TV systems, as reported by these stations, is also listed. Unless otherwise noted, the first station listed is group headquarters.

The Politics of Broadcast Regulation, Third Edition, by Erwin G. Krasnow, Lawrence D. Longley, Herbert A. Terry. Completely revised to take into account dramatic changes in the field, such as increased competition from cable television and inovations involving satellite transmission and the regulatory climate. Political, economic and technological changes are described and analyzed. Looking at broadcast regulation from a public policy perspective, the book is organized in two parts. Part One traces the evolution of broadcast regulation and shows how regulations and broadcasting policy are determined by the FCC, the broadcast industry, the executive branch, and Congress. Part Two provides five case studies of broadcast regulatory policies. A closing section gives a broad overview of broadcast regulation, relating the analytical and theoretical material in Part One to the specific facts brought to light in the case studies of Part Two. 304 pages, annotated bibliography, index.
S6001.

Voice of America

Headquarters: 330 Independence Ave., S.W., Washington. (202) 755-4744. Moton S. Smith, acting dir;Robert L. Chatten, deputy dir; Robert Frese, dir of engrg. Public affrs office: Frederick Quinn, dir; Pat Sowick, deputy dir.

Policy

By law the Voice of America, a part of the U.S. Information Agency, operates under the following directive: The long-range interests of the United States are served by communicating directly with the people of the world by radio. To be effective, the Voice of America must win the attention and respect of listeners. These principals will govern VOA broadcasts:

1. VOA will serve as a consistently reliable and authoritative source of news. VOA news will be accurate, objective and comprehensive.

2. VOA will represent America, not any single segment of American society, and will therefore present a balanced and comprehensive projection of significant American thought and institutions.

3. VOA will present the policies of the United States clearly and effectively, and will also present responsible discussion and opinion on these policies.

To implement this directive, these broadcasts present news and news-related items of American and world events, news analyses, editorials, correspondents' reports, editorial roundups, and feature material such as documentaries, roundtable discussions, interviews and special events all of which provides overseas audiences with a balanced and accurate concept of the many facets of American life and clear information regarding U.S. policies.

Facilities

The Voice of America has a network of 109 transmitter: 31 in the continental United States and 78 overseas. These are short and medium wave stations ranging in power from 10 kw to 1,000 kw. The largest transmitter complex is at Greenville, N.C. There, 16 transmitters relay programs received via microwave from the Washington studios to audiences and relay stations abroad over 66 directional antennas. Total power at Greenville is 4,700 kw. Other domestic facilities are at Bethany, Ohio; Marathon, Fla. (MW); Delano and Dixon, both California.

Overseas relay stations are at: Munich, Germany; Kavala and Rhodes, Greece; Tangier, Morocco; Monrovia, Liberia; Tinang and Poro, The Philippines; Woofferton, England; Colombo, Sri Lanka; Bangkok, Thailand; Judge Bay, Antigua, Selebi-Phikwe, Botswana,and Quesada, Costa Rica. These include short and medium wave transmitters, among which are two one-megawatt transmitters. VOA's total power is now 21,520,000 watts. Also 21 satellite circuits are used to feed VOA's overseas relay stations.

Local Placement

Many VOA tapes, music recordings and script materials are furnished by United States Information Agency offices overseas for local distribution and broadcast. Other relays and rebroadcasts are made through arrangements with local broadcasters in Western Europe, Africa, the Near East, South Asia, the Far East and Latin America. For example, VOA's Spanish-language feed of 25 daily (M-F) correspondent reports are broadast a total of 2000 times on stations and networks throughout the southern hemisphere.

Armed Forces Radio and Television Service

AFRTS operates over 800 radio and television outlets located in more than 50 foreign countries, remote areas of Alaska, U.S. trusts, territories and possessions, and aboard Navy ships. Most of the land-based stations are grouped into regional AFRTS networks to serve specific geographical areas (for example, American Forces Network-Europe in Europe and Far East Network in the Pacific). These AFRTS networks and independent stations create their own individual radio and television program schedules from broadcast materials provided by the AFRTS BroadcastCenter in Los Angeles and from their own local productions. Some outlets are broadcast operations and some carried on closed circuit systems of various types. Domestic and Intelsat satellite service is leased on a 24 hour-a-day basis and provides real-time stateside radio and TV to certain overseas locations.

HQ AFRTS. AFRTS is the broadcast arm of the American Forces Information Service located at 1735 N. Lynn St., Arlington, Va. 22209. (202) 696-5280. Melvin Russell, asst dir, AFRTS; Lieutenant Colonel Lawrence Pollack, opns mgr; Lieutenant Colonel Michael Paterson, mgmt svcs.

(1) Channel, power and antenna. WOF-TV operates with 200 kilowatts (effective radiated power) visual and 20 kilowatts aural. Its antenna is 500 feet above average terrain and 300 feet above the ground; it holds a construction permit for a height increase.

(2) Date station first went on air (regardless of subsequent ownership changes).

(3) Address and zip code, telephone, Teletype Writer Exchange number.

(4) Licensee name and date of acquisition (if not original owner).

(5) Ownership. Acme Stations owns WOF-TV and several other broadcast properties, all detailed in the Group Ownership directory in section A. The station additionally has print media connections, explained in the Newspaper directory (also in section A). Principal stockholders are listed for independently owned stations.

(6) Network, foreign language, rep and Washington attorney. The primary WOF-TV national affiliate is CBS, the secondary is NBC. The station broadcasts two hours of Spanish a week. Sales representatives are listed with national rep first, then regional.

(7) Personnel.

(8) Cable and translators. WOF-TV is carried on six cable TV systems with a total of 20,000 subscribers, and on 10 rebroadcasting translators.

(9) Co-owned radio. WOF-TV has the same licensee as WOF-AM-FM.

(10) Advertising rates. The prices the station charges national advertisers for a 30-second spot are shown for each of three day-parts:

Prime time; early fringe; daytime in that order. If a day-part is inapplicable a dash (—) replaces the rate.

* An asterisk indicates noncommercial stations.

Note: The dollar volume figures represent total considerations reported for all transactions with the exception of minority interest transfers in which control of the stations did not change hands and stations sold as part of larger company transactions, such as Capcities buy of ABC. All sales have been approved by the FCC. Also, prior to 1978, a combined AM-FM facility (now groups) was counted as one station in computing the total number of stations traded.

*Prior to 1971, figures represent total number of deals involving both radio and television stations. Beginning in 1971, when the FCC's one-to-a-customer rule, prohibiting the sale of co-located TV and and radio stations, became effective, figures represent the total number of separately located TV and radio stations that were sold in packages. In 1985, the mergers of large groups with interests other than broadcast stations could not be evaluated, since individual station values were not broken out of the larger sales. Group sales totals are now limited to compilations of "pure" stations sale—those only concerning TV and radio stations.

Television Marketplace

The ADI Market Atlas

The Area of Dominant Influence is a geographic market design that defines each television market exclusive of the others, based on measurable viewing patterns. Each market's ADI consists of all counties in which the home market stations receive a preponderance of viewing, and every county in the U.S. (excluding Hawaii and Alaska) is allocated exclusively to only one ADI—there is no overlap. The total of all ADI's represents the total television households in the U.S.

The ADI is a standard market definition. As a television buying tool it is a geographic and demographic means for maximum efficiency. As a station tool it has applications for sales, programing and promotion planning.

Following, in alphabetical order, are Arbtron Television's 214 ADI markets for 1985-86, with coverage maps for each; and county-by-county breakouts of TV households. Other data include the market's stations, and their cities of license, channel numbers and network affiliations.

Coverage maps show total survey areas in white, the ADI's themselves in light crosshatching, and Arbitron Metro Rating Areas in heavier crosshatching. The survey areas consist of all counties in which the home market stations are viewed to any significant extent, including via cable. The Metro Areas, usually conform to the U.S. Census Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas.

Non-ADI markets do not meet Arbitron's criteria for having an ADI of their own; they are listed with the ADI of which they are a part.

A complete list of the non-ADI markets appears on page C-151 and a cross-reference list for cities in a multi-city ADI on C-214.

Non-ADI Markets

The following single-county markets did not acheive ADI status because the preponderance of viewing is not to the home-market station. Neither did they meet the criteria of the 10% Rule to become an ADI. The home counties in non-ADI markets are assigned to the ADIs that do receive the preponderance of viewing. Universe estimates for a non-ADI market are included in the ADI market to which they are assigned.
